

David Bitterman currently serves as the Deputy Director, Leader Training Center, Health Readiness Center of Excellence, Fort Sam Houston, Texas. He was born and raised in Northern California, and received a Bachelor of Science Degree in Biological Sciences from the University of California, Davis, a Masters of Health Administration from Baylor University, and a Masters of Strategic Studies from the Army War College.

David served our nation as an Officer in the U.S. Army for 30 years, retiring from active service in 2015. During his career in the Army, he served as a developing leader in medical units focused on support to operational forces in combat, later transitioning to health care administration of health clinics, hospitals, and major teaching medical centers. At the end of his career in the Army, Colonel Bitterman served as the Chief of Staff of three major Army organizations, to include service as the Chief of Staff of the entire U.S. Army Medical Command.

In his current position, David teaches and manages the operations of the Leader Training Center, Health Readiness Center of Excellence, ensuring all medical officers in the U.S. Army receive high quality professional military and leadership education and training. The Leadership Challenge © curriculum is incorporated into many courses taught at the Health Readiness Center of Excellence, and it is exported regularly to other agencies and students, both military and civilian, throughout the Department of Defense.

David has received several honors and awards, to include the Department of Defense Distinguished Service Medal, the Career Achievement and Distinguished Service Award of the American College of Healthcare Executives, the Preceptor of the Year of the U.S. Army – Baylor University Graduate Program in Health and Business Administration, and the Order of Military Medical Merit. David Bitterman is board certified in Healthcare Management, and is a Fellow in the American College of Healthcare Executives.